Article 5

Scope of licence

1) The licence is valid in all EEA Member States and entitles the electronic money institution concerned to issue electronic money on the basis of the freedom to provide services or the freedom of establishment within the EEA.

2) In addition to issuing electronic money, the following activities are covered by the licence:

4) Any funds received by electronic money institutions from their customers shall be exchanged for electronic money without delay, unless such funds consist in compensation for other electronic money services. #### Article 6

Application

1) Anyone intending to act as an electronic money institution must apply in writing to the FMA.

5) At the same time as it grants the licence, the FMA must arrange entry of the electronic money institution and the authorised electronic money services in the Electronic Money Institutions Register (Article 36).

Article 8

Capital and initial capital

1) The initial capital is composed of the paid-up capital (with the exception of cumulative preference shares), including any issue premiums and any reserves and any profit brought forward, and must be fully paid-up.

3) If a holding is acquired or sold despite the opposition of the FMA, the FMA may, regardless of any other measures, provide for suspension of the exercise of voting rights, the nullity of votes cast, or the annulment of those votes.

2) The required own funds may at no time fall below the amount set out in Article 8(2) and calculated in accordance with the following paragraphs.

3) On the basis of an evaluation of the risk management processes, risk loss databases, and internal control mechanisms of the electronic money institution, the FMA may:

- a) require the electronic money institution to hold an amount of own funds that is 20% higher than the amount resulting from the calculation set out in paragraphs 4 to 6; or

5) In regard to the activity of issuing electronic money, the own funds must amount to at least 2% of the average outstanding electronic money.

6) Where an electronic money institution carries out an activity referred to in Article 5(2)(a) that is not linked to the issuance of electronic money or an activity referred to in Article 5(2)(b) to (e) and the amount of outstanding electronic money is unknown in advance, the FMA shall allow that electronic money institution to calculate its own funds requirements on the basis of a representative portion assumed to be used for the issuance of electronic money, provided such a representative portion can be reasonably estimated on the basis of historical data and to the satisfaction of the FMA. Where an electronic money institution has not completed a sufficient period of business, its own funds requirements shall be calculated on the basis of projected outstanding electronic money evidenced by its business plan subject to any adjustment to that plan having been required by the FMA.

7) If an electronic money institution belongs to the same group as another electronic money institution, a payment institution, a bank, an investment firm, an asset management company, or an insurance or reinsurance undertaking, the FMA shall make the necessary arrangements to prevent the multiple use of components eligible for the calculation of own funds. This shall also apply where an electronic money institution carries on other business activities (Article 5(2)) in addition to issuing electronic money.

8) Where the conditions set out in the provisions of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 are met, the FMA may choose not to apply paragraph 9 to electronic money institutions which are included in the consolidated supervision of the parent undertaking.<sup>15</sup>

2) Outsourcing of important operational functions may not be undertaken in such a way as to impair materially the quality of the electronic money institution's internal control and the ability of the FMA to monitor the electronic money institution's compliance with all obligations laid down in this Act.

3) An operational function is important if a defect or failure in its performance would materially impair the continuing compliance of an electronic money institution with the licensing conditions or other obligations under this Act, or its financial performance, or the soundness or the continuity of its electronic money services. When important operational functions are outsourced, the following conditions must be complied with:

- a) the outsourcing shall not result in the delegation by the general management of its responsibility;
- b) the relationship and obligations of the electronic money institution towards its customers under this Act shall not be altered;
